Bill Gross, CEO, Idealab

Joshua Baer, Founder, Capital Factory, OtherInBox

We all live in email, but are constantly declaring "email bankruptcy." Email is the default place where we put all of our most important communications, manage projects, send files, and have group conversations. Email is used to solve a lot of problems it was not designed to solve. In this DEMO Brainstorm, two veteran founders will describe the problems email is trying to solve and propose better ways to go about solving them.

DEMO Deep Dive: How Does Bitcoin Become Real Money?

Keith Rabois, Partner, Khosla Ventures

Barry Silbert, Founder & CEO, SecondMarket/Bitcoin Investment Trust

Bitcoin is taking off as a new currency and a payments protocol that is completely native to the internet. But how does it become a permanent store of value instead of something that fluctuates wildly and tends to be a vehicle for speculation or converted immediately into other currencies to remove that risk? Rabois and Silbert will give us a deep dive into the

Founder School Session: The Future Doesn't Have to Be Incremental

Alan Kay, Viewpoints Research Institute

A Conversation with Alan Kay

Alan Kay once said, "The best way to predict the future is to invent it." But how do you invent the future? Kay—the pioneering Silicon Valley computer scientist who brought us object-oriented programming, the GUI interface and the very concept of mobile, networked computing—draws a distinction between true invention and innovation. What he sees in Silicon Valley today is a lot of incremental innovation. But it doesn't have to be that way.
