1 in 10 people have been a victim of illicit drug-related incidents.

The illegal drug trade continues to cause serious harm to people and families in our community.

Those involved in organised crime are often in plain sight - particularly if they enjoy flaunting their ill-gotten wealth through expensive property, clothes, cars, jewellery and other high-end retail items. Perhaps it's a neighbour, work colleague, friend of a friend or even a customer where you work that give you a feeling that something isn't right.

Crime Stoppers offers a way for you to share your concern in confidence - and they'll never know it was you.

What are some signs of criminal activity?

- Someone who wants to recruit you or others at work into activity you know isn't right.
- Anyone asking you to ignore something you know is wrong.
- Frequent visitors at all times of the day or night who only stay a few minutes.
- Someone who always seems to have quantities of cash.
- A person with an expensive lifestyle that doesn't match their income.
- Occupants and visitors of a nearby home, shop or other place seen exchanging suspicious items with cash.
- Someone with outlaw motorcycle gang tattoos.
- Deliveries or pick-ups at an address that look suspicious or occur at strange times.

Who can you contact?

For more than 30 years, the community's information has been protected by Crime Stoppers.
