

OUR STORY

Forest Fresh is a Perth based family business specializing in the supply of bioactive honeys sourced from the pristine native forests and rangelands of southwestern Australia. Our honeys are selected based on provenance, quality and scientific evaluation. Our business was founded with a focus on strong practical and technical expertise, which allows us to source and select only the best honey from the best beekeepers.

Our extended family have been commercial beekeepers in WA for over 100 years. We know the local apiary industry, the provenance of the best honey, and who are the best and most sustainable beekeepers.

We are the industry leaders in combining science with honey. Within our family we have strong scientific expertise, and have spent years researching local honey. This has allowed us to develop the industry's first proprietary screening process using compositional analytical data to select our honey, and constantly supply the same high quality products.

We pride ourselves on excellent customer service, and providing everything our customers need to succeed. From marketing materials, technical information and advice, certifications, shipping documents and more, we supply everything needed to successfully ship and sell Forest Fresh products worldwide. We know country specific import documentation requirements and any Free Trade Agreements that may give reduced import duties. As a customer of our Forest Fresh family, you can be assured that you will receive the best service and honey products from Australia.

WHAT MAKES WESTERN AUSTRALIAN HONEY DIFFERENT?

Western Australian honey is unique. The disease-free bees and superior terroir result in powerful and delicious natural honey. Here at Forest Fresh, we work with a range of multigenerational beekeepers who have access to the best beekeeping sites to maximize these unique benefits.

Working with a range of beekeepers means we have more honey to select from, and can supply only the highest quality for our customers. Forest Fresh Jarrah honey is selected based on the Jarrah Factor™ (JF), a value calculated with a proprietary formula that uses compositional analytical data as inputs. The higher the value, the stronger the unique properties such as low GI, prebiotic strength, resistance to crystallization and more.

The JF, in conjunction with the assayed Total Activity (TA - fungal and bacterial killing power of honey), tells us what honey is suitable for our Jarrah Platinum range. Most importantly, it tells us what honey does not meet our quality requirements.

HONEY FACTS

Jarrah Platinum GI has been measured at 46. Manuka honey is typically about GI 55 and other honeys can be up to GI 65.

SUPPORTED BY SCIENCE

We pride ourselves on using our unique scientific skills to source, select and supply only the best quality honey from Western Australia. We have invested over $25,000 in researching Western Australian Active honey and its unique properties and benefits.

We work with approved beekeepers, typically minimum second generation, including our extended family. Supplier beekeepers must have sustainable production methods that ensure the honey retains all raw properties, and would be capable of Organic Certification.

Samples are tasted and scored on specific criteria to ensure honey aligns with what our customers expect. The approved samples are despatched for detailed compositional analysis.

For Jarrah honey, the multi variable analytical data are used to calculate our proprietary Forest Fresh "Jarrah Factor TM" (JF), a single value that defines the quality of the honey.

Honey selected is despatched to an international laboratory for Total Activity (TA) analysis.

Honey that yields a >JF80 and >TA35 is selected for the Forest Fresh Jarrah Gold range, and honey with >JF100 and >TA50 selected for the exceptionally rare Jarrah Platinum range.

All honey is carefully stored and packed to ensure retention of all beneficial properties.

ETHICAL & SUSTAINABLE PROCESS

Nectar is stored in the bee's unique honey stomach where enzymes are added, and some water removed.

04

Healthy worker bees forage for nectar and pollen from native flowering plants.

The worker bees pass the nectar to hive bees, who add more enzymes then store the nectar in small cells in beeswax comb where it ripens to honey via dehydration and enzymeenabled chemical reactions.

05

Once the combs and hive are full, the comb frames are gently removed without harming the bees.

01

Western Australian plants flower irregularly leading to harvests approximately every second year for Jarrah trees, and up to every 10 years for Karri trees.

06

The honey is gently extracted in an ethical and sustainable manner by our qualified beekeepers, with no ultrafiltration processes, and stored in large barrels.

A honey sample is taken from each barrel and screened for appropriate taste and colour.

Samples of approved honey then sent to accredited international laboratories for analysis of Total Activity and up to 11 natural · constituents.

The honey is packed carefully by our team of specialists, and supplied directly to you to enjoy all the natural benefits.

Honeys with the correct purity, properties and Activity are selected via our proprietary scientific method.

We follow industry standard practices and maintain a HACCP and BQUAL certification.

Jarrah honey, otherwise known as 'liquid gold,' is the most popular and powerful healing honey we supply. Sourced from the ancient forests of Western Australia, Jarrah honey has exceptionally strong antimicrobial power as measured by the Total Activity (TA), the lowest GI of most honeys (Jarrah Platinum has been measured at GI 46), strong prebiotic power (particularly for the production of butyric acid, a known anti-cancer substance), phytochemicals with antioxidant and anti-inflammatory properties and vitamins, minerals and more. This dark honey has a delicious smooth caramel flavour. Unlike other medicinal honeys, Jarrah honey does not have an overly sweet floral tone or bitter aftertaste.

Available in TA15+, TA25+, Organically Certified TA35+, Gold TA40+, and Platinum TA50+. In a range of sizes - sachets, glass, PET and gift sets.
