Expertise

Generating Connected Health Ecosystems

An informal and open community of stakeholders interested in developing a joint eHealth agenda

Ecosystems are:

- Multi-stakeholder communities within a country or region who build projects and implement innovative solutions
- They are permanent
- Regular (4 meetings per year)
- Part of an international network - sharing and learning with other Ecosystems

“eHealth Ecosystems could be the answer to the strain our social security systems are undergoing. If we work together and use the enormous potential technology has to offer us, we can ensure top healthcare for all in Europe” Neelie KROES, Former Vice President of the European Commission

Unrivalled Reach and Expertise

The ECHAlliance International Network:

- Is an unparalleled network of ecosystems that span the EU and the international stage
- Connects more than 25 Connected Health Ecosystems across Europe, North America and soon China
- 100+ gatherings across Europe are facilitated by the ECHAlliance annually, resulting in over 15,000 connections and unrivalled insight and expertise

The ECHAlliance can 'join the dots' and offer insight from one country that can greatly assist in the health challenges of another

Unrivalled Reach and Expertise

The 'Trusted Connector' Role

Health and social care systems from across the globe continue to face monumental challenges.

ECHAlliance exists to connect organisations, people, needs and solutions so that we can meet these challenges head on.

- As an independent organisation the ECHAlliance gives impartial advice and expertise to members and connects those who could benefit from one another's services and expertise
- Through our International Network, the ECHAlliance is able to identify potential collaborative opportunities between members and guide both parties on how best to work together to affect meaningful change

The Power of Collaboration

We can achieve so much more by working together

- Through collaboration we can drive effective connected health solutions and speed up progress.
- ECHAlliance members are leading the way: When their knowledge and expertise are combined, there are few health challenges that cannot be overcome

The Value of the ECHAlliance

Despite the progress made to treat some of the world's deadliest diseases, stark inconsistencies and disparities in the way that people around the world access and receive treatment are apparent

- Fact: the average lifetime expectancy for people living in Japan (86) is ten years higher than its rival China (76), and even within the UK there is disparity.
- These differences caused by silos, challenges and minutiae in markets which create complexity, making it difficult to engage the requested reforms and to manage the change.
- In a market as complicated and information-rich as connected health, the role of the trusted connector is crucial. ECHAlliance helps to reduce delays to deployments by using its extensive network to communicate success in one Ecosystem to others.
