Her experience ranges from the non-profit section corporate markets in the US to inter-cultural work in Canada, Holland, Africa and the Middle East. Jean founded GAP Community, Inc. (a nonprofit corporation) in 1998 and Yellow Marker, Inc. (consulting and training) in 2012 with the vision of bringing character and values to the foreground both personally and professionally. She develops and co-authors training materials and resources for her corporate clients as well as several non-profit and humanitarian organizations. Her specialties include leadership development, culture change and communication/team building. In 2018, Jean published her first book on leadership, The Art of Feeding Heroes, leading from the inside out.

Jean is dedicated to:

- Unleashing Passion – When people come alive in their workplace, their communities and their families, they bring their creativity and enjoy vibrant, fulfilling lives.
- Developing Character – The foundation of business and personal success is aligning character with vision. Inviting people into their inherent greatness synergizes relationship in every sector of life.
- Creating Legacy – Each person has the opportunity to choose how they relate to their life and in doing so, create an intentional mark on their relationships, in their communities and on the environment.
