

HCBS 2015

The image shows three antique leather-bound books standing side-by-side. Each book has a dark brown leather cover with intricate gold-tooled decorative patterns, including floral and scrollwork designs. The spines of the books are visible, showing the titles in gold lettering. The books appear to be part of a collection, possibly related to the HCBS (Health Care Benefits System) mentioned in the titles.

Affordable Housing for Older Adults and People with Disabilities

Affordable housing is a basic human need that older adults and people with disabilities struggle to obtain. The NASUAD iQ curriculum is designed to provide an overview of the types of affordable housing that are available to older adults and people with disabilities, the challenges associated with finding age- and disability-appropriate housing, and the various services, supports, and resources available to help them find and maintain their homes.

Latest News

A Geneva-based hedge fund manager has been fined £900,000 for manipulating the price of shares during the financial crisis (Alex Spence writes). Stefan Chalignet failed in an appeal yesterday to overturn a fine and ban by the Financial Services Authority. The Upper Tribunal found that he had committed serious market abuse in an effort to make his fund more attractive to investors.

The FSA tried to increase the fine to £1.25 million, but the tribunal said that Mr Chalignet's conduct was not "serious dishonesty" and rejected the fine. The tribunal banned Mr Chalignet from working in financial services in Britain. Patrick Segon, a former broker at Cantor Fitzgerald, was fined and fined £500,000 for executing trades for Mr Chalignet.

Carlsberg has become the latest European brewer to target faster growth Asian markets (Charming, Walsh writes). Several UK firms continue with bright prospects of Thailand.

The Canadians have entered the race to win a multibillion-pound project to build up to six nuclear reactors in Britain. The Tories has learnt SNC-Lavalin, Canada's largest engineering group, has teamed up with Japan's Hitachi to bid for the Horizon joint venture, which owns two vacant reactor sites in Anglesey and Gloucestershire.

EDVand RWE, the German energy group, pulled out of the venture in March after politicians in Berlin decided to scrap domestic nuclear power in the wake of last year's Fukushima nuclear disaster in Japan. Final bids were due in yesterday and the winner is set to be announced within the next three weeks according to industry sources.

Hitachi has put forward its advanced Boiling Water Reactor design, which SNC-Lavalin would build and operate on the two sites. However, it faces stiff competition from two Chinese state-backed consortiums, Toshiba Westinghouse, the Japa-
